A NEW CHECKING SERVICE THAT LENDS ITSELF TO BORROWING.

United Virginia Prestige Checking is a self-service loan service. It lets you deal with a loan officer you can actually feel comfortable confronting: Yourself.

Prestige Checking allows you to write out checks for more than your balance. That extra money becomes a personal loan through your United Virginia BankAmericard. And, you're billed for it later. So, it's exactly like asking yourself for a loan.

All you need is a checking account with us, a United Virginia BankAmericard, and an approved line of credit.

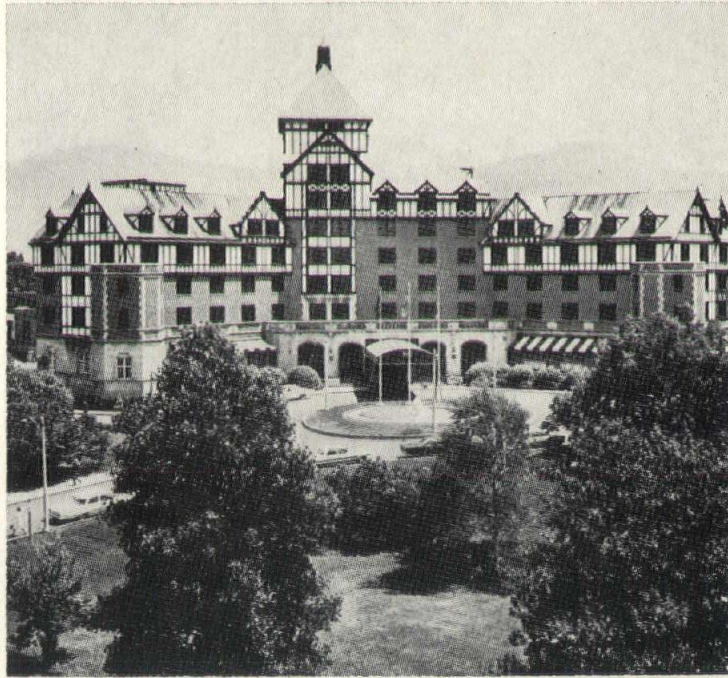

You can get complete information and fill in an application at any United Virginia banking office.

COME HOME TO ONE OF THE LAST GREAT HOTELS

Once on business and once on pleasure.

There are two sides to a hotel's personality. And two tests of a truly great hotel.

One is how they treat you when you're part of a big group. A convention, say.

The other is how they treat you when you're alone. Or with a small group.

And the nice thing about Hotel Roanoke is that there's no difference.

Because to our way of thinking, even a gathering of a thousand people is made up of a thousand individuals.

And that's the way we treat you. Individually. With style. With grace. With hospitality. The same way we like to be treated.

Because whether you're by yourself, or with your family, or with a large convention, there's one common idea we want you to take away when you go.

That you want to come back. Because it will be like

Another uncommon performer in the Virginia tradition: Bank of Virginia.

For an uncommon man like Thomas Jefferson, doing one thing well was never enough.

For us, just being a major Virginia bank is not enough. We never stop trying to improve the number and quality of our services.

So we've grown from a tiny beginner in 1922 to the $500 million flagship bank of Bank of Virginia Company; from one small Richmond office to a state-wide organization with 38 locations.

As fellow Virginians, we continue to find Mr. Jefferson's performance a particular challenge. We may never equal his achievements, but the attempt itself is making the difference that counts.

"None Is So Blind—"

ABOUT TWO inches of newspaper type on an inside page were sufficient to cover the conflict over the busing of 32 black and Puerto Rican children, from the Brownsville ghetto, to a school in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn. Because of the sociological implications in this violent confrontation in the supposedly liberal heartland of Greater New York, the ugly situation was developed more fully by columnists in the New York Times and Washington Post and by the education editor of Time Magazine. From the background material provided by these publications, a dispassionate picture emerged of the de facto segregation practiced in Northern cities and of the tensions created by the increase of Negroes in a given environment.

New York (where a few years ago studies were offered on racial problems in the South) has a black population of 21%, but has schools that are 95% black and 95% white. The 80,000 population of the suburb of Canarsie is composed almost entirely of lower-middle class working people, predominantly Italian and Jewish, many of whom fled there from the rising tide of blacks in adjoining Brownsville. Their modest two-family brick houses are well kept and the people are respectable, law-abiding people. The 5% black population in Canarsie is the result of two housing projects in this suburb, but because of the proximity of these projects to the Wilson school, about 30% of its 1,600 pupils are non-white. Since the Wilson school, then, already had approximately 500 black or Puerto Rican pupils, who caused no problems, why did the parents explode over the inclusion of 32 more?

The answer of the aroused parents was that these 32, ordered by the Central School Board to be bussed from the Brownsville ghetto into quiet Canarsie, represented the first trickle of a black wave that would inundate first the schools and then the community. During the period when the white parents boycotted all of Canarsie's eight schools (putting 9,500 students on the streets) and barricaded themselves in the Wilson school. Mrs. Judy Koretz, head of the Parents' Association, summed up their position. "We are not racists and we are not bigots, but this is a line we had to draw. We want to resolve this issue not only for today but for tomorrow. We want to control our destiny instead of leaving it to the hands of the central school board of the state."

This statement, of course, echoes similar statements that have been made for years from other parts of the country, but the point here is that the national media treated the problem of the Canarsie whites with compassion and understanding. No epithets of "white supremacists" have been applied. No coverage has been given any civil rights groups who have descended on Canarsie to do missionary work for the Negroes among the benighted. Mike Wallace has not subjected Mayor Lindsay to a prosecuting attorney's type of grilling; in fact, it has been reported that—"for political reasons"—the mayor has made himself scarce.

On the other hand, columnist Charles Bartlett wrote, "Priests and Rabbis on the scene are stymied by the moral implications. While unable to condone a denial of equality, they cannot stand against the anxiety of the Canarsie parents to take the precautions they deem necessary to avoid the white-to-black transformation of their community." In other words, the columnist sympathizes with the religious leaders' bafflement when confronted with Northern

AUGUSTA Military Academy

Fort Defiance, Virginia

One of Virginia's distinguished schools rich with the heritage of 108 years, young with the academic program reaching to tomorrow. Individual attention and motivation are meaningful words at Augusta.

Beautiful location in the Shenandoah Valley. A thorough program of academic, sports, military, and social life for the young men of today.

Non-military summer school features tutorial classes, a reading clinic and drivers' education classes.

Heat. Don't add extra heat. Cut down on heat-producing uses inside the home, such as unnecessary cooking, ironing, lights, television sets, and radios that are on but not being used or watched.

Cooling. Don't overcool. A five degree thermostat setting can mean a substantial decrease in your operating costs. Raise your set-point to 76 degrees or 78 degrees as recommended by grees as conditioning specialists. For maximum comfort, don't try to keep the inside temperature more than 15 degrees cooler than the outside temperature. Walking into a 75-degree house on a 95-degree day feels like walking into a refrigerator.

Don't try to cool the great outdoors. When air conditioners are on, keep windows closed. Check for cracks around window units. Keep outside door openings and closings to a minimum.

Temperature. If you are a working family or plan to be away all day, raise the thermostat setting on your air conditioner by five degrees when you leave. It should only take a few minutes to bring the temperature back down when you return, and you will save on operating costs. Turning the unit off completely will probably not save money because the unit will have to work extra hard to remove the heat built up during the day and thus require a much longer cool-down period when you come home. If you plan to be away until later in the evening when cooler outside air will begin to cool your house down naturally—or if you are planning to be away several days—then shut your air conditioning off when you leave.

Location. Put window unit in best location. A window that is in the middle of the area to be cooled is the best place. If possible, avoid corners and hallways as locations for the unit. Make sure large pieces of furniture are not blocking the circulation of air both into and away from the unit.

Cleaning. Keep filters clean. Dirty filters will run up your cooling costs by restricting air flow and thus make your unit work harder and longer.

Care. Have your central cooling unit serviced each year. An air conditioner that is out of adjustment can increase your operating costs while giving you very little cooling. Don't let shrubbery, grass, or grass clippings reduce the flow of air over the outside condensing coils of your central unit or the outside-the-house portion of your window unit. The heat removed from your house will not be able to escape from the condenser.

These suggestions should help you enjoy the summer even more. The savings you get from the proper use of electricity are bound to make you happy.

IN OUR BOOK, THE CONSUMER COMES FIRST.

And because one of the consumer's main objectives these days is saving money, we're making this new booklet available free at Vepco offices everywhere.

Electricity that's used is still one of the biggest bargains around. But electricity that's wasted is expensive. And that's what our booklet is all about: electric waste and how to stop it, with money-saving suggestions anyone can use, all over the house.

"How to Save on Your Electric Bill" is dedicated to the consumer—and so are we. And this is just the beginning of a major Vepco campaign to make buying-power better than ever in the area we serve. Because at Virginia Electric and Power, you come first. Always.

You are looking at a hospital room nobody needs

but everybody pays for.

When the plans were made for a new hospital, no one stopped to consider the extra beds already available at a hospital only five miles away. So now the community has two hospitals with extra beds, and no hospital with the physical therapy unit that's really needed.

The volunteers on Virginia's nine comprehensive area health care planning councils want to eliminate useless duplications like this—duplications that, whether they're needed or not, must still be paid for in higher hospital bills, higher insurance premiums, and the potentially better care that's lost through wasted resources.

These non-profit councils, including five in the area served by Blue Cross of Virginia and Blue Shield of Virginia, concentrate on the needs of the entire community rather than of the single health care facility. And after they identify the needs, they help determine priorities and coordinate the planning efforts of the individual community agencies that meet these needs. The result is greater efficiency, better area-wide care, more services—and less cost for everyone.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield we support area health care planning with financial contributions, administrative and computer assistance, professional counseling, public and legislative endorsement—and membership on the councils themselves. And we provide this support for a very good reason.

You see, we realize that it's not enough just to control our own operating costs so that about 92¢ of every subscriber dollar can go directly to physicians and health care institutions to purchase care. As a health care leader, we also have a responsibility to help control the cost of this care itself. And wise planning to meet real community needs is the best way we know to start.

AUGUSTA Military Academy

Fort Defiance, Virginia

One of Virginia's distinguished schools rich with the heritage of 108 years, young with the academic program reaching to tomorrow. Individual attention and motivation are meaningful words at Augusta.

Beautiful location in the Shenandoah Valley. A thorough program of academic, sports, military, and social life for the young men of today.

Non-military summer school features tutorial classes, a reading clinic and drivers' education classes.

Heat. Don't add extra heat. Cut down on heat-producing uses inside the home, such as unnecessary cooking, ironing, lights, television sets, and radios that are on but not being used or watched.

Cooling. Don't overcool. A five degree change in your thermostat setting can mean a substantial decrease in your operating costs. Raise your setting to 76 degrees or 78 degrees as recommended by most air conditioning specialists. For maximum comfort, don't try to keep the inside temperature more than 15 degrees cooler than the outside temperature. Walking into a 75-degree house on a 95-degree day feels like walking into a refrigerator.

Don't try to cool the great outdoors. When air conditioners are on, keep windows closed. Check for cracks around window units. Keep outside door openings and closings to a minimum.

Temperature. If you are a working family or plan to be away all day, raise the thermostat setting on your air conditioner by five degrees when you leave. It should only take a few minutes to bring the temperature back down when you return, and you will save on operating costs. Turning the unit off completely will probably not save money because the unit will have to work extra hard to remove the heat built up during the day and thus require a much longer cool-down period when you come home. If you plan to be away until later in the evening when cooler outside air will begin to cool your house, down naturally—or if you are planning to be away several days—then shut your air conditioning off when you leave.

Location. Put window unit in best location. A window that is in the middle of the area to be cooled is the best place. If possible, avoid corners and hallways as locations for the unit. Make sure large pieces of furniture are not blocking the circulation of air both into and away from the unit.

Cleaning. Keep filters clean. Dirty filters will run up your cooling costs by restricting air flow and thus make your unit work harder and longer.

Care. Have your central cooling unit serviced each year. An air conditioner that is out of adjustment can increase your operating costs while giving you very little cooling. Don't let shrubbery, grass, or grass clippings reduce the flow of air over the outside condensing coils of your central unit or the outside-the-house portion of your window unit. The heat removed from your house will not be able to escape from the condenser.

These suggestions should help you enjoy the summer even more. The savings you get from the proper use of electricity are bound to make you happy.

IN OUR BOOK, THE CONSUMER COMES FIRST.

And because one of the consumer's main objectives these days is saving money, we're making this new booklet available free at Vepco offices everywhere.

Electricity that's used is still one of the biggest bargains around. But electricity that's wasted is expensive. And that's what our booklet is all about: electric waste and how to stop it, with money-saving suggestions anyone can use, all over the house.

"How to Save on Your Electric Bill" is dedicated to the consumer—and so are we. And this is just the beginning of a major Vepco campaign to make buying power better than ever in the area we serve. Because at Virginia Electric and Power, you come first. Always.

but everybody pays for.

When the plans were made for a new hospital, no one stopped to consider the extra beds already available at a hospital only five miles away. So now the community has two hospitals with extra beds, and no hospital with the physical therapy unit that's really needed.

The volunteers on Virginia's nine comprehensive area health care planning councils want to eliminate useless duplications like this—duplications that, whether they're needed or not, must still be paid for in higher hospital bills, higher insurance premiums, and the potentially better care that's lost through wasted resources.

These non-profit councils, including five in the area served by Blue Cross of Virginia and Blue Shield of Virginia, concentrate on the needs of the entire community rather than of the single health care facility. And after they identify the needs, they help determine priorities and coordinate the planning efforts of the individual community agencies that meet these needs. The result is greater efficiency, better area-wide care, more services—and less cost for everyone.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield we support area health care planning with financial contributions, administrative and computer assistance, professional counseling, public and legislative endorsement—and membership on the councils themselves. And we provide this support for a very good reason.

You see, we realize that it's not enough just to control our own operating costs so that about 92¢ of every subscriber dollar can go directly to physicians and health care institutions to purchase care. As a health care leader, we also have a responsibility to help control the cost of this care itself. And wise planning to meet real community needs is the best way we know to start.

For information on individual or group health care plans, write to Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia, 2015 Staples Mill Road, Richmond, Virginia 23230.

OUR MOTTO. EXPLAINED.

Like most businesses, we have a motto. We think it says something truthful and believable about our corporate philosophy. Which is, simply, furthering our aims by furthering the aims of our customers.

It doesn't say we've cornered the market on smiling, helpful people, although we're sure we have more than our share.

Action always speaks louder than words.

And it doesn't say we're the biggest. Even though we're one of Virginia's major banking systems, bigness doesn't always mean greatness.

What we do say is, "Helping you grow helps us grow." And that says a lot.

Because we believe we only help ourselves by helping our customers, our customers believe us when we promise conscientious banking service regardless of their need or station in life.

Helping you grow helps us grow. It's a pretty special motto . . . because it's true.

to tell the Virginia Story

Ridgeway brings you the correct time in six decorator colors, six beautiful woods and thirty-two classic designs.

Consider the superb examples of Virginia craftsmanship below and try to imagine a home they wouldn't enhance. Beautifully. Ridgeways come in styles to complement any decor and in sizes to fit any room. Or budget. (They start at $195.) Each contains an equally superb example of West German clocksmithery, including a choice of four mellifluous chimes. In short, a Ridgeway clock tells considerably more than the time. It tells what kind of person you are.

NEWPORT NEWS. WE'VE LAUNCHED MORE THAN 500 SHIPS.

But wait 'til you see our encore. When we started out in 1886, we were just a small ship repair yard. We named the company Newport News. Because we were proud to be doing business here.

Today we're the largest shipyard in the world. And we're still proud to call ourselves Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company. Because a lot of the people who helped put us where we are today come from right here on the Virginia Peninsula.

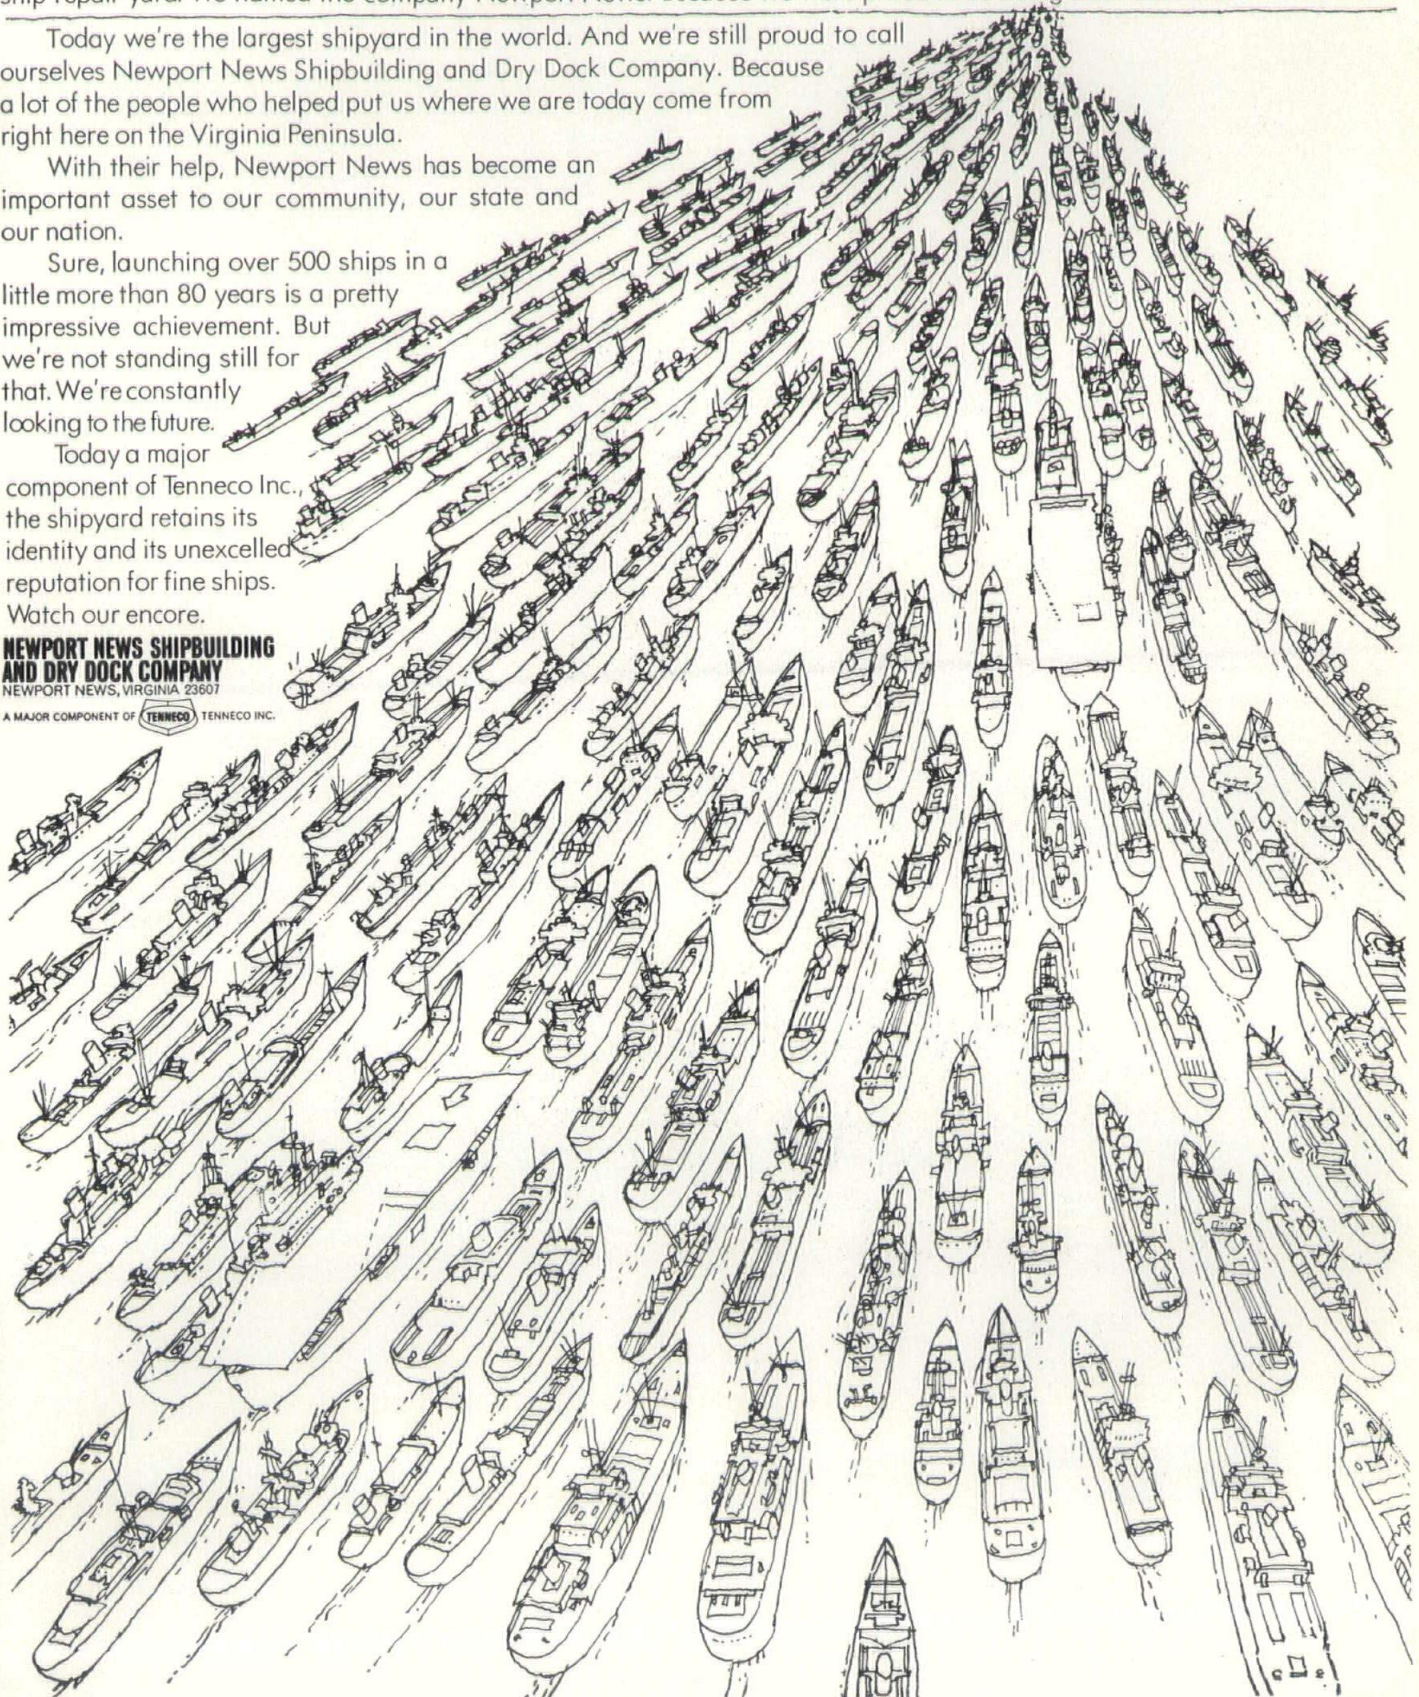

With their help, Newport News has become an important asset to our community, our state and our nation.

Sure, launching over 500 ships in a little more than 80 years is a pretty impressive achievement. But we're not standing still for that. We're constantly looking to the future.

Today a major component of Tenneco Inc., the shipyard retains its identity and its unexcelled reputation for fine ships. Watch our encore.

Union Camp is a vital part of Virginia's industrial growth. We brought the world's largest fine paper machine on line in 1970 and in 1972 started up our new particleboard plant.

An inherent part of our growth is our attention to environmental protection, the multiple use of our woodlands and the regeneration of harvested forests for future generations.

Our conference facilities, for 7 to 700, are a far cry from those for our earlier meetings.

So are the diversions.

Even our earlier conferees, who helped to build a nation, enjoyed a little relaxation with their business. And 18th century Williamsburg had much to offer: exciting pastimes like cudgeling, greased pig-chasing and bowling on the green.

Today we offer somewhat different diversions. There are tennis courts and swimming pools and a championship Robert Trent Jones golf course. But the bowling green remains. And the lively town of Williamsburg, with its 18th century dwellings, public buildings, craft shops and taverns, looks much as it did 200 years ago when those meaningful meetings took place.

We can help make your meetings meaningful, too, at any of our three hotels: Williamsburg Inn, Williamsburg Lodge or The Motor House.

After all, we've been in the conference business for a long, long time.

HISTORIC MICHIE TAVERN MUSEUM

A FAMOUS TAVERN OF THE 1700'S

A wealth of traditional charm clings to early American taverns. The very words create an atmosphere of candlelight, graciousness and hospitality. At Historic Michie Tavern, near Thomas Jefferson's Monticello, Charlottesville, Va. the pages of history are turned back over 200 years, where a striking portrayal of pre-Revolutionary life may still be observed. AFTER YOUR VISIT through the museum, DINE in "THE ORDINARY," a converted log house where people meet and enjoy the food of yesteryear.

ple's anxiety over the white-to-black transformation of their community. Mr. tlett concludes: "It is a classic dilemma."

t is a more far-reaching, complex historic dilemma than is represented by an ugly racial conflict which based deep-seated hatreds in a section New York. For this dilemma, which surfaced increasingly during the five years, reveals the self-deception which non-Southern Americans have practiced for more than a century.

Even the most militant Liberals must remember that no national observers and this "dilemma" existing when ps were sent into Southern states, in the late 'fifties into the 'sixties, to come the whites' resistance to attempts to the "transformation" of their communities. As we all remember, instead of receiving understanding or a touch of compassion, the white elite of the South was excoriated: to slurs on the region became a proof of one's own moral righteousness. Even as writing detective fiction showed chic by gratuitous insults.

Now when this righteousness has had to be vocal with conflicts over integrating schools and busing bursting the open all over the North, the dilemma was not confronted. Instead, we began to hear very little about "moral issue" over the races. In Canarsie, Mrs. Koretz said, "We are not racist, but . . ." And this widespread attitude is not fundamentally because ofocrisy. This sudden reticence about moral issue (accompanied by an almost total cessation of epithets applied to the South) has been caused by the Southern American's new lack of certainty about his own self-image.

Not hypocrites, the Americans sincerely, if deludedly, believed in the notion of their own moral superiority. As to the problems of racial integration were at a distance, and the beliefs preached were not put to the test, Americans had no reason to doubt the approving myth which their history taught them. After all, while the South fought a war to perpetuate slavery, did not the high-minded Northerners launch a moral crusade to abolish this evil? Then, after twelve years of Reconstruction, during which high-minded Northerners erected a superstructure of equality for the Negro in the South, did not the Southerners, upon as the Northerners' backs were turned, return the Negro to conditions near slavery as possible?

This high-minded idealism was brought into the present by civil rights' legislation, for the South, and by undertaking the burden of spreading the blessings of American democracy to the "free world," which Americans would save from the evils of communism. As George F. Kennan wrote, America "becomes the victim of its own propaganda. It tends to attach to its own cause an absolute value which distorts its own vision . . . It is the center of all virtue, [while] its enemy becomes the embodiment of all evil." In a most naive self-righteousness, Americans have lived with this belief in those absolutes which have been quite contrary to actual history and to actual practices.

What happens, then, when the Americans' belief in the absolute of their righteousness is shaken?—when the evil (of racism) so long imputed to the South is found lurking in their own society? Does the nation face up to its historic self-deception which Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr., Chief of Naval Operations, said was one of the most "destructive" influences on the solution of racial problems? Admiral Zumwalt, in an address to 100 top Pentagon admirals and Marine Corps generals, following the racial crises on the carriers, Kitty Hawk and Constellation, and the oiler, Hasayampa, called attention to the 5.8% black enlisted personnel and 0.7% officers in the Navy, and the discrimination against those, as the grossest example of the illusion of an integrated service providing "equal opportunity." Although in civilian life, such examples—despite the imposition of cumbersome and often unworkable "quotas"—can be reproduced endlessly, the Americans do not face up to their self-deception.

"I'm not a racist, but" whenever the proportion of blacks in any Northern school passes one-third, the exodus of white students begins and the school rapidly becomes virtually all black. Pragmatic Nixon would never state any belief in inequality or in undoing such racial progress as has been made: simply by opposition to "forced busing" and quotas and "forced housing," he assured himself of the votes of the overwhelming majority who, as do the Canarsie residents, fear the transformation of their environment from white-into-black. Since the practical attitudes are clearly in conflict with the myth of moral righteousness, what seems to be happening is a creeping ambivalence in the Americans' self-image.

It is also now becoming evident that the shaken racial absolute is only one element—although the central element—in the Americans' ambivalence about their self-image. The oldest element is the mythical "equality of opportunity" and the new element is (or was) the post World War II belief that this equality of opportunity for the individual can be achieved through the Federal judiciary operating local school systems. An adjunct of this second belief is the conviction that equality of opportunity for groups can be achieved through a quota system, in which certain bunches of people must have places in organizations, institutions and society reserved for them.

As of now, after considerable damage has been done the public school systems and the white flight to the suburbs has become commonplace, recent studies, based on research, tend to show that inequalities are not only inherent in individuals but that the difference between groups—family, ethnic and economic backgrounds—exerts an influence which dominates in school and beyond. Thus, while the sociological battleground that schools have become has resulted in diminishing the quality of education, even if the quality were not diminished, inequality among human individuals and the backgrounds which produced them would negate the theory that schools promote an equality of opportunity. As for the group quotas, liberal columnist Joseph Kraft wrote, "it inevitably sets group against group."

Yet, it is not only these artificially imposed quotas—with all the confusion they cause in any sort of merit system—that sets group against group: for decades politics have polarized groups and classes, regions and communities, while awareness has grown of the large polarity existing in the inequitable distribution of wealth. All of these polarities, each containing some inequality, are antithetical to the American's formerly self-approving self-image, about which now he has grown uncertain. But if he will re-examine the myths behind the self-image, he will discover that the inequalities, which have existed since

Colonial times, do not indicate anything fundamentally wrong with America.

What has gone wrong is that Americans can no longer fit the pie of the myths to the realities, and it is as traumatic for a people as it is for an individual to be stripped of comfortable illusions. However, once the deception is stripped away, it is surprising to see that this nation, like all others, though perhaps more than some, is firmly based on power.

Dr. Rollo May, the great psychotherapist whose books have had such influence among thoughtful Americans, stated our case very simply. "Power is widely coveted and rarely admitted. Generally, those who have power repress their awareness of this fact. It is dispossessed of our society, represented by such movements as 'women's power' and 'black power,' who, when they are able, force a direct confrontation of the issue." Or long ago, Nietzsche wrote, "Wherever I found the living, there I found the will to power."

I've never read an analysis (although there may be hundreds existing) of why Americans are so loathe to confess their admiration for power, and for its concomitant—status. A glance at the structure of American society at any point in its history will show the dominant place of power in all communities, going hand-in-glove with pieties about humanity and moral values. Even now, when it is evident that society is composed of conflicting groups, struggling for more power for less "inequality"—Americans do not look at the true nature of their society. An exception to this would be some of the young who, after a good look, want to run away from it all. There really isn't any place to hide, except temporarily.

Because there is no place to hide, and we feel the pressures which we do exist, there has been a loss of civility of decencies and our respect for humanity of those unlike ourselves.

the loss of amenities in human relationships and the rise of hostilities (not always overt) will not remove distortions of somewhat awry self-representation as long as spokesmen in powerful media encourage readers to look away from the power/status drives that characterize the society.

During the upheavals at Southern University, in Baton Rouge and New Orleans, the New York Times editorialized that the situation was a typical representation of the South. What is represented by Canarsie, the Newark, the shame of the crime-breeding ghetto of Harlem? This seems not to be the time for implied self-glorification through denigration of another region, in all regions in their different ways facing a fracturing through power shifts and the need is for mutual supervening understanding.

Even the enlightened William Raspberry, an usually objective Negro columnist, falls back on the clichés of racial divisiveness in referring to the cloak of respectability" given "motivation" by Nixon's political pragmatism. "This kind of re-play could possibly lead to a post Reconstruction period when the national government abandoned black America to its natural enemies."

Come on, Mr. Raspberry, this is the time to rewrite the morality play of the Reconstruction. "The national government" of the Reconstruction era consisted of Radical Republicans who exploited the freed Negro—poor, penniless people cut off from the land, the working of which was all they knew—to get his vote in order to, as Thaddeus Stevens said, "continue the Republican ascendancy." To make the point plain, Senator Jacob Howard, of Michigan, wrote abolitionist Senator Sumner that the Negro vote was needed to carry the Southern states for the Union. "Whatever the Northern people do to their own blacks." When, twelve years, the last Southern state had regained its own government and the Republicans had no further use of the Negro, they "abandoned" the Negro all right—but to his "natural enemies?"

Who were his "natural friends?" Certainly not the Radical Republicans in power in Washington who, making every effort to keep the Negro in the South, deceived him with false promises and illusory hopes in order to get his votes, before abandoning him with the whites in a ruined region, prostrate from four years of invasion and twelve years of exploitative Reconstruction. Maybe the Negro had no natural friends, and no clarification is offered the present by suggesting that the Negro's friends were the Radical Republicans who imposed Reconstruction.

In this immediate period, with a tentative, national drawing-back from the sociological dislocations of further coercive integration, Mr. Raspberry is right in saying it is a re-play of the post-Reconstruction era. Now, as then, the Negro has been abandoned by the non-Southern sections of America after political action limited to the South. In the post Reconstruction era, the Negro in the South was abandoned when he became of no further use in perpetuating the Republican Party in power; in the present case, he has been abandoned when legislative efforts on his behalf ceased to be only in the South and were extended to other parts of the nation. In brief, the Negro was abandoned the second time when non-Southern America was asked to practice the racial pieties Americans had for so long preached—while the living practicalities were at a distance.

Although central to all of America's self-deception, while the actual confrontations, such as in Canarsie and in the Navy, deny the self-deceptive myths, more than a century of conditioning is difficult to overcome, especially when there are always those media spokesmen to confirm it through invidious comparison to the South.

Maybe the worst thing morally that ever happened to the non-Southern America was crushing the Southern states' attempt at independence, or, as now called, self-determination: "the consent of the governed." For in that cruel war, naked power at its most destructive and inhumane was transformed into a "moral crusade." But since it did contribute so substantially to the Americans' self-deception, the best approach to self-knowledge would be for non-Southern Americans to forget about The South entirely.

Edmund Wilson, the late, great critic and essayist, was a dyed-in-the-wool Yankee, with the usual stereotyped contempt for the South, until he came to know, in middle life, Southern writers. Then, in writing sympathetically about "the extent to which the Southerner . . . disassociates himself from the North," Wilson wrote, "We, of the American Union, now quite unaware of what we did to the South in the war and Reconstruction, regard with the same self-righteousness" the Southern resistance to Washington-imposed desegregation as to the resistance "that accompanied our struggle against it a hundred years ago."

Since there is no likelihood at this date of the "American Union" becoming aware of what happened to the South in the war and Reconstruction, and since the American Union has little interest anyway in its real past, it would seem that progressive Northerners have both the education and sophistication to free themselves of an outworn mythology, just as other mythologies have been discarded. Without the mythology, of their moral superiority, the Northerner would be free to examine his modern attitudes in relation to an abstract standard of justice—instead of in relation to what the South is/was doing (or the Northerner's perception of the Southerner's behavior).

After all, since it is the poor, nighted South (by the North's definition) which disassociates itself from the American Union, living by its own Southern standards, isn't it so how demeaning for such a great nation as the U.S.A. to gain self-approbation by judging its moral and ethical behavior by comparison with a region which Americans regard in every way as inferior? Are their own problems real enough now—as they were not post-Reconstruction and in the sixties—to give up the Pharisaical "Thank God, I'm not as other men" for an appraisal of what manner of men they actually are? Do they face the possibility that their hatred of the South is a projection of their hatred of the prejudices within themselves? And does not all this go back to the ancient Biblical wisdoms about the mote in one's own eye and casting the first stone?

None of us has anything particular to be proud of in racial justice and of us (despite pious political slogans) lip-service to "equality of opportunity" condone the most glaring inequities of our society. Those inequities are largely endemic to human society, however they may be obscured by politicians' phony protestations of humanity, but racial justice is a matter of everyone's personal conscience (or should be). When this is acted upon, when the scales of human justice replace the scales of self-deception, a general gain will be the leavening of those hostilities of group against group, region against region—and the possibility of a reformation of those civilities and decencies can only come from true humanity and never from a people divided between a half-shattered self-image and a reluctantly faced reality.

With a return of these human qualities, the separate environment of this by no means homogeneous nation could at least realistically face the problems peculiar to their own community with concern for the solution rather than with self-justification. While the nation could scarcely ever be a "team," of Mr. Nixon's imagery, parts could work more harmoniously each worked on the mote in its eye.

f Your Employees Should Ask About A Credit Union - - -

Could You Answer?

The Following Facts May Help - - - - -

1. A Credit Union is an association of people, owned and democratically controlled by their members who agree to save their money together and to make loans to each other at low interest.
2. A Credit Union is organized by members of a particular group—for instance, people working for the same employer; people who belong to the same church or labor union; or people who live in the same closely knit community. Membership is open to all within the group regardless of race, color or creed.
3. A Credit Union teaches its members thrift by encouraging them to save regularly. Members are paid dividends on their savings.
4. A Credit Union provides its members low cost loans. The interest rate on Credit Union loans is established by the elected officials of the Credit Union. There are no extra charges.
5. Most Credit Unions offer Loan Protection Insurance without additional charge to eligible borrowers which means that loans are automatically repaid in case the member dies or becomes totally and permanently disabled.
6. A Credit Union's funds are protected in many ways:
  - a. Credit Unions are chartered under either Federal or State Law and are supervised by the chartering agency. Examiners inspect Credit Union records regularly.
  - b. The Supervisory Committee of members audit Credit Union records each year.
  - c. Credit Unions are required by law to carry surety bond coverage.
7. A Credit Union is a separate corporation, owned and operated entirely by its members and the sponsoring organization has no legal or financial responsibility for it.

"Our Only Purpose - Service To Our Fellowman"

We're in the American forefront because we have 2½ billion George Washingtons behind us.

Since we first opened our doors in 1953 Fidelity Bankers Life has grown in leaps and bounds. Together with our affiliates, we have 2.5 billion dollars in life insurance in force today which puts us in the top five percent of all insurance companies in the United States plus Canada.

The reason things have gone so well for us is because of one belief: our clients deserve the best insurance available for the money and the best representatives servicing them, like W. C. Carter, CLU & Associates.

To prove this we've just installed a new Electronic Estate Evaluation System which can automatically help us analyze your insurance needs so we can tell how much and what kind of insurance is right for you and your family.

We can offer this free service to you because of what's behind us. Could you ask for someone better than George Washington?

Fidelity Bankers Life. If you're thinking about insurance remember us.
